In addition, Was has also served as President of America's venerated jazz label, Blue Note Records, since 2011.

They'll be performing a mix of new originals and interpretations of songs written by artists like Yusef Lateef, Olu Dara, Henry Threadgill, and more.

Records that Don has produced have sold close to 100 million albums for a wide array of artists like The Rolling Stones, Bob Dylan, Willie Nelson, John Mayer, Ringo Starr, Wayne Shorter, The B52s, and Charles Lloyd. As a film composer, he won the 1994 British Academy Award (BAFTA) for Best Original Score in recognition of his work on the film Backbeat. In 1995, he produced and directed a documentary about the life of Brian Wilson, I Just Wasn't Made for These Times, that won the San Francisco Film Festival's Golden Gate Award. He also won the 2014 Emmy Award for Outstanding Music Direction for his work on the CBS TV special The Beatles: The Night That Changed America. And in 2018, Don was invited to join Grateful Dead guitarist Bob Weir to form the Wolf Brothers. They continue to consistently tour the US.

Don's deep Detroit roots keep him anchored to the city where, for the last 15 years, he has music directed and played bass in the Don Was Detroit All Star Revue concerts – which are part of Detroit's annual diversity festival, The Concert of Colors. Since 2021, he has been co-hosting a weekly live radio show on Detroit's NPR station, WDET-FM, called The Don Was Motor City Playlist.
